

On the other side of my Invisible Thread is Jesus, my Savior. Whenever I feel alone and sad Jesus leads me to the Doors of Heaven. When I fall down Jesus reminds me to get back up because I remember that He got up when His own children were yelling at Him. When someone gets on my nerves, I can only try not to hate because I remember Jesus loves everyone, even the people who wanted him dead. Every day Jesus guides me through it, and even on the worst of days I can rely on Him. Everyone should try to remember Jesus and all that He gives to us. Jesus is on the other side of my Invisible Thread and that thread will never be broken.
